

Nelsons statement on use of Xylitol in Rescue Pastilles re: pets

There has been some confusion from pet owners recently reported on blogging websites regarding Rescue® Pastilles and animals. Nelsons does not recommend giving Rescue Pastilles (a medicine intended for humans) to any animal as they contain Xylitol - a natural sweetener found to improve human oral hygiene, but which is not suitable for pets.

To clear up any misunderstanding, Rescue® Remedy spray and dropper products and Bach™ Original Flower Remedies do not contain Xylitol.

For animals, we recommend Rescue® Remedy Pet from the Rescue range. Rescue Remedy Pet is a blend of five Bach flower essences in an alcohol-free, glycerine formula. It is available as a dropper purchasable at Whole Foods Market or online at www.rescueremedy.com/pets.

We recommend that pet owners should always check with their vet before giving any new health product to their animals.

Regards.

Cynthia Batterman
President, No/So America

